Notification Regarding the Dissolution of a Domestic Production subsidiary and the Opening of a Peruvian Sales Subsidiary

Makita Corporation (Makita) has resolved at the Board of Directors meeting held today to dissolve Makita Ichinomiya Corporation (Makita Ichinomiya), which is a subsidiary that produces woodworking machinery, by the end of December, 2007. At present, almost all of the products manufactured at Makita Ichinomiya are purchased by Makita, and the personnel and production facilities of Makita Ichinomiya will be transferred to the Okazaki Plant, which is our main factory. The Makita Group intends to streamline its operations by consolidating its domestic production functions.

In addition, the sales subsidiary that was newly established in Lima, Republic of Peru will open on May 1 as a part of our continued efforts to strengthen our sales network in the Central and South American regions, where the market continues to grow. Currently, Makita's Chilean sales subsidiary (Makita Chile Ltda.; representative: Takashi Nagata; headquarters: Santiago; established: March, 1999; capital: 2.326 billion Chilean pesos) is carrying out sales activities in Peru through a local agent, but Makita intends to strengthen sales and customer service by establishing an overseas subsidiary.
