Item 2.05 Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities.

On September 8, 2008, The New York Times Company (the “Company”) announced that, in January 2009, it will close City & Suburban Delivery Systems, Inc. (“City & Suburban”), its distribution organization that delivers The New York Times and other newspapers and magazines to newsstands and retail outlets in the New York metropolitan region. Going forward, The New York Times will be distributed to newsstands and retail outlets through a combination of third-party wholesalers and the Company’s own drivers.

Approximately 550 full-time equivalent employees will be affected by the closure and the Company plans to ease the change by providing severance packages to them. The Company is not able at this time to make an estimate of the total charges related to the closing of City & Suburban. The Company will file an amended report or reports as and when it determines such estimate.

A copy of the Company’s press release regarding the closing of City & Suburban is attached as Exhibit 99.1 and is incorporated by reference herein.

Forward-Looking Statements

Except for the historical information contained herein, the matters discussed in this current report on Form 8-K are forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from those predicted by such forward-looking statements. These risks and uncertainties include national and local conditions, as well as competition, that could influence the levels (rate and volume) of retail, national and classified advertising and circulation generated by our various markets and material increases in newsprint prices. They also include other risks detailed from time to time in the Company’s publicly filed documents, including the Company’s Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 30, 2007. The Company undertakes no obligation to publicly update any forward-looking statement, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.
