CML Board appoints new directors

Coles Myer Ltd Chairman Rick Allert today announced the appointment of four new Board directors.

Mr Allert said that the appointments of Keith Barton, Tony Hodgson, Sandra McPhee and Michael Wemms,* would take effect from July 22 2003.

"Our new directors possess strong strategic, financial, international retail and consumer expertise, combined with extensive director and executive experience.

"We are delighted to welcome four highly qualified directors to the Board to join us in working with senior management to continue the process of rebuilding Coles Myer," he said.

Mr Allert said the appointments followed an extensive international search.

"Our key criteria for new directors was that they have the strategic, financial and corporate governance skills and experience both to qualify them as directors of a large and complex organization and to enable them to add value to the team of retail leaders appointed by John Fletcher.

"We have recruited to the Board directors who bring skills and experience in various areas integral to retailing, including consumer loyalty, supermarket, fuel and convenience stores and supply chain management.

"Coles Myer has a strong and diverse Board, committed to working with an outstanding retail leadership team to continue the progress we are making in delivering our five-year strategy to restore shareholder value," Mr Allert said.
