Nomura to Adopt Committee System

At the Board of Directors Meeting held today, Nomura Holdings, Inc. (NHI) determined to adopt the Committee System under the revised Commercial Code effective on April 1, 2003. At the same time, NHI's domestic subsidiaries (14 domestic companies of the Nomura Group) will also adopt the Committee System.

NHI will consider details such as organization changes and personnel issues and adopt the Committee System following amendments to the Articles of Incorporation at the General Meeting of Shareholders to be held in June 2003.

The reasons for adopting the system and details of the companies covered by this change may be found on the following pages.

(Note)

In Japan, the revised Commercial Code will provide a company with a choice between two alternative corporate governance systems from April 1, 2003. One option (only available at present) is to have a board of statutory auditors. The other option (newly available in April 2003) is the Committee System under which a company will establish a nomination committee, a compensation committee and an audit committee and introduce executive officers (shikko-yaku).

Reasons for Adopting the Committee System

(1) To Increase Management Transparency

NHI and its domestic and overseas subsidiaries (the Nomura Group) adopted a holding company structure on October 1, 2001 and have taken a series of measures to ensure transparency of management practices. The current management structure of NHI comprises eleven directors including two outside directors and four statutory auditors including two outside statutory auditors. They have a number of management supervisory functions. In addition, NHI established an Executive Compensation Committee to discuss compensation for the directors of the Nomura Group. The Committee members are the President and two outside directors. Furthermore, NHI was listed on the New York Stock Exchange in December 2001 with enhanced information disclosure.

The adoption of the Committee System conforms to the management reorganization set out above. Under the new corporate governance structure, NHI will establish three committees: a Nomination Committee, a Compensation Committee and an Audit Committee, each of which will have a majority of outside directors, aimed at strengthening management oversight and further improving transparency.

(2) To Create More Flexible Group Operations

The Nomura Group pursues integrated business operations under a unified strategy that goes beyond the legal entities. Under the Committee System, management oversight functions will be separated from business operation functions and many of the powers to execute business activities will be delegated to executive officers. As a result of the new structure, NHI will be able to make quicker management decisions on a consolidated basis.

In addition, NHI's directors will serve as outside directors of many of the subsidiaries to ensure strong and effective oversight of the management of the subsidiaries.

(3) To Enhance the Effectiveness of Internal Control Systems

Following the adoption of the Committee System, NHI will establish more effective internal control systems by reorganizing audit functions of the statutory auditors and internal audit functions.
